

Tomorrow's Warriors work with our Jazz staff and students!

Earlier this term, we were informed of an exciting collaboration project with local Music Hubs and Tomorrow's Warriors (TW). Our very own Music Teacher, James Macphail, who happens to be a Jazz specialist and Double Bass player, was successfully selected from applicants across Cornwall and Devon to be a key part of this project.

He explains "Tomorrow's Warriors are a renowned London based organisation that use Jazz education and performance to promote diversity and equality. The aim of this exciting project is to support the long-term development of a cohesive infrastructure for anti-racist jazz education across Devon and Cornwall. I was thrilled to be selected for this role and to be able to provide opportunities for our aspiring Jazz Musicians."

Two of our musicians from Tretherras played an integral part in the workshop and performance, Zeb Murphy on drums and Gabriella West on vocals. They impressed a large audience with their skill and musical sensitivity. Going forward Newquay Tretherras Music will work to cultivate these new relationships across the southwest and beyond to provide further learning and performing opportunities for our young jazz musicians.

Photo: Steven Haywood

© Tomorrow's Warriors